Opening of New Furniture Store

Crowd Attends Haver-Hardenbergh Company Public Opening Saturday—Transact Considerable Amount of Business.

The Haver-Hardenbergh Company, Kingston's newest uptown furniture store, was welcomed with a great deal of interest Saturday when the public opening of the store was held. Hundreds of people visited the store during the day and inspected the new stock of merchandise which is shown on the main floor and basement floors of the store at 344 Main street. Many people were attracted to the store by the unusual window display and the whole store seemed to radiate such a welcoming atmosphere that everyone who visited it expressed hopes for its future success. Several uptown merchants expressed their good will by sending floral greetings and among them were M. Kaplan, North Front street furniture dealer and A. W. Molloit, Wall street clothier.

A full line of house furnishings is carried by The Haver-Hardenbergh Company, including furniture, beds, floor coverings and in fact, everything to furnish a home in the best possible manner.

Although Saturday was given over to inspection of the store by the public, the new firm transacted a considerable amount of business. During the opening week there are being offered two special introductory numbers which will be offered for the week. They are a combination of bed, springs and mattress complete and a day bed completely equipped which opens up to a full size bed. Boh of hese special offerings are offered at introductory prices for the week.

Both Mr. Haver and Mr. Hardenbergh extend an invitation to the public to come and inspect the store which is located in the former Forsyth & Davis store building on Main street opposite the Kingston Trust Company building.

J. R. Shults conducts the paint and wall paper department of the store in an uptown branch of his main store which is located at the corner of East Strand, Hasbrouck avenue and Ferry street.

Turkey Seeks Aid From Red Cross

Ten Thousand Dead and Ten Thousand Homeless—Earthquakes and Landslides Cause Havoc in Anatolia.

Constantinople, July 22 (AP).—Latest reports from Northern Anatolia state that recent earthquakes and landslides have caused the deaths of ten thousand persons. Ten thousand are homeless and without food.

As reports of the disaster continued the Turkish Red Crescent Society began rushing aid to the victims. The Constantinople press is appealing for the help of the International Red Cross.

Shocks and landslides, the latter caused by torrential rains, were reported to be increasing the havoc in northern Anatolia, where recent incarnations devastated the towns of Erzerume and Rizeh.

AUTOMOBILE DERAILED A TROLLEY CAR ON SUNDAY

Sunday afternoon on Broadway at Elmendorf street, an automobile of W. Hubbard of 189½ Elmendorf street and a trolley car were in collision and the trolley car was derailed. Fortunately no one was injured. Trolley traffic was somewhat delayed until the car was placed back on the rails.

13 Arrested on Traffic Charges

Automobile Traffic Was Heavy Through the City Over the Week End and the Police Department Made Thirteen Arrests for Traffic Violations.

Over the week end automobile traffic through Kingston was exceptionally heavy, and the police were kept busy handling the situation. Thirteen automobilists were arrested for various traffic violations, mostly for passing traffic signals when set against them.

Merton Shultis of St. Remy was fined $5 in police court today for passing the red light at Broadway and Foxhal avenue.

Albert J. Terry of Albany avenue was given a suspended sentence for driving to the left of the traffic standard at North Front street and Washington avenue.

John Starr of Paterson, N. J., a member of the carnival company playing Saugerties this week, bought an automobile last week in New Jersey for which he paid $30. The former owner of the car promised to mail him the certificate of registration. Sunday Starr was riding in his new car which was being driven by Jack Davis of Boston, Mass., also of the carnival company, who was arrested for not having a license to drive. This morning both received suspended sentences in police court when explanations were made.

George E. Schreck of Richmond Hill forfeited $5 bail when he failed to answer to a charge of passing a red traffic light. Fred W. Loede of Leonia also forfeited $5 when he failed to appear in court.

Joseph Eathmeier of New York city, arrested on two charges, that of speeding and of passing a red light, gave bail for his appearance Tuesday.

Michael DeLuca of New York city, arrested on two charges, that of passing a red light and of having no license papers, forfeited $10.

Isidore Epstein of New York city was fined $5 for passing a red light.

William A. Masten of Poughkeepsie, driving without a license, forfeited $10.

Paul Weinstock of New York city gave bail for his appearance later to answer to a charge of speeding and also of driving to the left of a traffic standard.

Marshall Still of Newburgh forfeited $5. He passed a red light.

Morris Efron of New York, who passed a red light, forfeited $5.

Rewrite House Tariff Bill

Washington, July 22 (AP).—Republicans of the Senate Finance Committee focused their attention today upon the difficult task of rewriting the House Tariff Bill.

Party leaders are insistent that they finish the job in time to have a report ready for submission to the Senate when it reassembles August 19. Chairman Smoot is hopeful but not confident that this can be done, although he shares with other members of the administration group the desire to have the legislation out of the way on the statute books before the regular session of Congress begins in December.

Increasing discussion of the possibility that the committee Republicans may decide to cut down on an extensive scale of the increases in numerous duties voted by the House has brought only non-committal comment from the chairman, never going beyond his remark that "some will go down and some will go up."

While the Republicans are working out their draft of the bill, the Democratic members of the committee, excluded from those sessions, plan to meet in another room to develop their own program in preparation for the long hard contest to come in the Senate. Democratic leaders have repeatedly expressed themselves as having no desire to prevent enactment of the legislation before the special session ends, but they are determined to prevent, if possible, many of the increases the House voted.

Soviet Troops Attack Chinese Along Frontier

Russian Forces Reported Equipped With Poison Gas and 32 Field Guns—Situation In Manchuria Grows More Serious.

Peiping, China, July 22 (AP).—An increasingly serious border situation in Manchuria over the week end counteracted the gratification that American intervention under the authority of the Kellogg pact seemed to have averted actual hostilities.

Chang Hsueh Liang, Governor of Manchuria, reported to the Nationalist government at Nanking that Soviet forces opened an attack on the Chinese along the Suifen river on the eastern border of Manchuria at 8 a. m. Saturday.

Chang said the Chinese troops remained on the defensive. Russian troops, he said, were equipped with poison gas and 32 field guns.

Delayed Associated Press dispatches from Pogranichnaya, sent Saturday morning, mentioned no battle but said the populace there was panic-stricken because of repeated demonstrations by four Soviet airplanes above the city. Chinese fired on the planes but scored no hits. The same dispatch said Vladivostok was cut off completely by rail, even the Amur Railway being blocked by what the officials described as "floods" along the river by the same name.

An appeal of President Chiang Kai Shek, who is also generalissimo of the Chinese armies, to the commanding officers and soldiery, was published here. Chiang called on the armies to rise against "Red imperialism" and uphold the sovereign rights of China.

The manifesto concluded: "Russia's arrogant attitude cannot be ignored. Otherwise how can we ever hope to abrogate unequal treaties and win our proper place in the family of nations? Unless we unite in the fight against Red imperialism our country and our people will perish."

Nationalists State Case.

The Nationalist government at Nanking Sunday published its manifesto to the world governments stating its case.

It is said that in view of Communist propaganda undermining the government it had been constrained to adopt measures of self defense with regard to the Chinese Eastern Railway. It decleared the Soviet government, disregarding the consequences, had adopted warlike preparations, thereby violating the spirit of the anti-war pact to which it was signatory.

The manifesto in conclusion invited the world to give its attention to evidence of subversive Communist propaganda in Manchuria, emanating from the highest Soviet officials in the province.

Japanese news agency dispatches furnished what appeared to be the most authoritative report of events within Manchuria.

Two dispatches from Harbin said Wan Fu Ling, governor of Keilungkiang district of Manchuria, would be appointed commander-in-chief on the western front with 80,000 troops, and Li Chensheng, governor of Kirin district, commander-in-chief with 250,000 men on the eastern front.

Rengo dispatches said Red cavalry had advanced to within half a mile of Manchuli, at the western end of the Chinese Eastern Railway, where the rival armies were camped less than a mile part. Japanese residents of both Manchuli and Pogranichnaya have fled to Harbin on the advice of their consuls, who view the situation as dangerous.

A detachment of Chinese heavy artillery with 30,000 men arrived at Tsitsihar.

In explanation of the border situation it was pointed out that communications were slow and that the purported attitude of the home governments toward the controversy, choosing rather to settle it by peaceful means than war, had not yet been conveyed by the rival military forces.

FATALLY GORED BY BULL WHEN SHE WENT TO MILK

Belleville, Ont., July 22 (AP).—Mrs. Irvin Reid, 23, a farmer's wife, has been killed by a bull.

She had gone into a field to milk cows when the bull, recently purchased by her husband, dashed across the field and caught her with his horns, tossing her in the air and goring her when she fell.

Severely injured, she ran to a tree, which she and her little child climbed. A limb snapped, hurling them to the ground. The blow rendered Mrs. Reid unconscious and the child was also injured.

Both were found shortly afterwards when the wails of the child attracted the notice of neighbors. A physician took 72 stitches in Mrs. Reid's body. She died later.

KILLS FATHER IN FIGHT OVER DRINK OF WHISKY

Chicago, July 22 (AP).—Aleck and Edward Jeschke, father and son, fought last night over who was to have the last drink from a bottle of whisky. The father was killed by a blow from the son's fist, and the younger man was arrested.

Four other children of Aleck Jeschke saw the fight. They said the son struck his father above the heart and that the 44-year-old man dropped to the floor. He was dead when police arrived.

Britain With U. S. in Effort To Prevent War

Washington, July 22 (AP).—Great Britain now stands formally ranged alongside the United States in the effort to prevent war in the controversy between China and Russia.

Sir Esme Howard, the British ambassador, has placed before Secretary Stimson a note from his government saying it is "happy to associate itself with the American action calling attention of the Chinese and Russian governments to their obligations under the Kellogg anti-war treaty.

The note is in response to the secretary's communication on the subject last week with the British, French and Japanese ambassadors, whose governments are bound under the four-power Pan-Pacific treaty of 1921 to confer when peace is threatened in the east.

While the Kellogg treaty will not become formally operative until the Japanese ratification is deposited here Wednesday, the United States has taken the position that both Russia and China, having adhered to the pact and renounced war as a national policy, are morally obligated to avoid war in the Manchurian controversy.

That view is shared by Frank B. Kellogg, former secretary of state, who had a large part in the world-wide negotiation of the treaty and has come back to Washington to take part in the ceremony which will attend the deposit of Japan's ratification. Holding that Secretary Stimson's reminder of the treaty's obligations to Russia and China was "entirely proper," he said:

"I don't think there will be any war."

The dispute over China's seizure of the Chinese Eastern Railway, being of an economic nature, is "very susceptible pacific settlement," in the former secretary's opinion, through either direct diplomatic negotiation or arbitration.

Parachute Jumper Thrills Big Crowd

Again Sunday night a large crowd visited the local flying field to witness Eric Lindgren's daring moonlight parachute jump. The cars bearing the spectators gathered at the field early and the roadways were lined with cars an hour before the jump took place. By the time the jump was made there was a throng at the field and on the roads near the field nearly as large as the one which gathered the previous week to witness Lindgren's first night jump.

Sunday night, although many of the spectators were unaware of the fact they witnessed one of the most daring displays of courage, and skill in parachute jumping that has ever been witnessed in any part of the country, and Lindgren proved that he is one of the best parachute men in the country.

As he jumped from the plane a large electric bulb which he had taped to one of the ropes of the chute broke loose and struck him in the head rendering him unconscious. Part way to the earth he partly regained his senses and "pulled" the chute so that he might land on or near the field and he then again lost his senses. He landed and was not injured although he was still dazed and admits that he does not remember landing. That he managed to land on the field was fortunate for had he landed in the waters of the creek which passes near the field the result may have easily been fatal.

It was only Lindgren's daring skill and experience that saved him from serious injury or worse, for had he not been able to use his skill at pulling the chute he may have been badly injured by landing in a tree, on some rocks or in the creek for he was not able to protect himself in his usual manner owing to his dazed condition.

Hoyt's Flight Ends in Crash

Edmonton, Alberta, July 22 (AP).—Captain Ross G. Hoyt's attempted flight from New York to Nome, Alaska, and return, was ended in a crash near Valemount, B. C. He was on his way here from White Horse, Yukon, on the third leg of his homeward trip.

The United States army flier escaped injury, but his pursuit plane was wrecked.

Hoyt had been expected back at Mitchel Field, N. Y., today if he maintained his pace. He had battled with the wind and rain since Thursday with practically no sleep and had covered nearly 6,000 miles. He left Mitchel Field at 2:30 p. m., New York time, Thursday.

He last 12 hours on the northward flight and tried to make up lost time. A message sent from Fairbanks, Alaska, told of a "tough trip" to Nome and return, with rain and low clouds the entire distance.

From Fairbanks Captain Hoyt flew back to White Horse, 500 miles. He hopped off again at 11 a. m. yesterday, Yukon time, hoping to cover the 1,100 miles to Edmonton and the 1,100 miles more to Minneapolis by this morning. From Minneapolis he would have had 1,025 miles more to New York.

As understood here, water in the plane's fuel forced him down.

Death Follows Last Run of "Old Peppersass"

Photographer Killed and Several Injured as Famous Old Locomotive "Goes Wrong", Careens Down The Jacob's Ladder Trestle and Plunges to Destruction.

Mt. Washington, N. H., July 22 (AP).—Stories of heroism were recounted today as several hundred persons, including governors of seven states, who assembled here Saturday to witness the final run of "Old Peppersass" up the mountain, scattered to their homes, sobered by the tragedy which claimed the life of a photographer and brought destruction to the celebrated locomotive.

Daniel P. Rossiter, Arlington, Mass., who was hurled off the engine as it sped down the steep cog railway after a triumphant trip to the summit, was the dead man. The injured included Edward C. Frost, who was at the throttle when "Old Peppersass" first climbed the mountain back in 1869 and who was operating it for the last time; his 16-year-old son, Caleb; Winston H. Pote, Swampscott, Mass., photographer, and W. I. Newsham, Concord, fireman.

They all leaped from the locomotive as it careened dizzily down the steep trestle known as Jacob's Ladder after something had gone wrong. Rossiter, it was believed, held on too long in an attempt to save his camera.

An instant later the locomotive toppled from the rails and into the ravine, where it was blown into bits when the boiler exploded.

Many of those who had assembled as guests of the state of New Hampshire and the Boston and Maine Railroad to see "Old Peppersass" redintegrated and make its final run after having served as a museum piece since 1893 were marooned for hours in the bitter cold on the second highest peak east of the Rocky mountains. They were forced to stay on the mountain because the ill-fated locomotive, in crashing over the trestle, had torn up so many ties that speedy repairs with the equipment at hand was impossible.

A number, however, including many women guests, elected to hike down the mountainside. It was five hours before some of them reached hotels at the base.

Among those whose names stood out today for heroic work were Lieutenant Shirley Clinton, aide to Governor William G. Conley of West Virginia, who subdued an excited male passenger in the train next following "Old Peppersass" as the man was about to urge others on the train to jump for their lives. Clinton overpowered the man and eventually quieted him and the others.

Another hero of the day was Adelard Bushey, brakeman, who held fast to the hand brakes when his train began to slide as it reached the place where "Old Peppersass" had torn up the rails.

In an official statement, the Boston and Maine Railroad declared "Old Peppersass" had been thoroughly reconditioned and tested both in the shops and on the mountain and that "something connected with the forward wheel apparently gave way." So completely was the loocomotive demolished that it was considered unlikely a more definite cause could ever be determined.

SAYS PANAMA CANAL NEEDS INCREASED AIR DEFENSES

Balboa, Canal Zone, July 22 (AP).—Increase in air defenses of the Panama Canal was advocated by Congressman W. Frank Jones, Michigan chairman of the house military affairs committee in a statement today.

"More air protection is essential," the congressman said. "Our coast defense guns are capable of holding off enemy battleships but the real danger would be from bombing planes, which could wreak havoc with the canal if a sufficient number got past the air defenses. The actual defense of the canal is planes, more planes, and still more planes."

Over 1,000 Convicts In Revolt At Dannemora

Two Convicts Killed When Mutineers Rush for the Wall—State Troopers Sent From Malone Barracks—War Department Refuses to Act—Over-Crowding Blamed.

Albany, July 22 (AP).—Two convicts whose names are not yet known were killed by prison guards today in a riot of more than 1,000 of the 1,568 inmates of Clinton prison at Dannemora, according to the State Department of Correction here.

A telephone message received by the department from Warden Harry M. Kaiser at the prison said that the situation was well in hand at noon and that about half of the rebellious convicts had returned to their cells.

The disturbance began shortly after 8 a. m. today when the 1,568 convicts were leaving the mess hall after breakfast to march to the various shops. As the march out of the hall began, the trouble started. Two prison guards, Murphy and Manley, were hurt by the rioters. The guards evidently were not able to cope with the outbreak and the convicts swarmed through the yard. One of their first acts was to set fire to the carpenter shop, which burned, with prison officials powerless to extinguish the flames.

Employes in the power plant extinguished the fires under the boilers when the rioting began, thus preventing the burning of the power house. All ofthe guards were mustered on the top of the prison walls, commanding a view of every section of the yard. They were armed with rifles and machine guns.

The rioting convicts made a rush for the wall, but a few shots fired by the guards drove them back toward the middle of the yard.

Representatives of the state department of correction said that overcrowding of the prison combined wih the fact that many of the inmates were serving long sentences had created a sullenness among the inmates which had been smoldering for some time.

Doubling Up in Cells

The cell capacity of Clinton prison is 1,200. The population of the institution today was 1,568. This condition has necessitated doubling up in cells in some instances and the use of the corridors in cell blocks for sleeping places.

The outbreak began when the prisoners were leaving the mess hall after breakfast. Almost instantly the passageway to the yard was filled with a yelling, frenzied horde of desperate men. The guards were unable to restore order and two of them were injured in fights with convicts.

The mutineers flocked into the yard at the southeast corner of the prison enclosure. In that section are located the carpenter and weave shops, cotton shop, dye shop, machine and blacksmith shop, clothing and shoe issue shop, mattress shop, prison garage and the new industrial building. At one end of the yard there were piles of lumber in storage. On three sides the yard is enclosed by a stone wall, 20 feet high. On the fourth side, separating it from the administration building and other portions of the institution, is a steel fence of the same height as the wall.

In the meantime, the United States army post at Plattsburg barracks had been called upon for assistance. Every available State Trooper was sent over from the Malone barracks by automobile. A detachment of troops from Platisburg arrived at the prison but took no part in suppressing the rioting within the walls pending receipt of orders from Washington authorizing them to do so.

War Department Refuses to Act.

Washington, July 22 (AP).—The War Department today refused to act on an application by Governor Roosevelt's office in Albany that Federal troops be employed in the prison outbreak at Dannemora.

The request was telephoned from Albany by the Governor's counsel.

The department replied that the Governor must make application to President Hoover for the use of troops and must state in his request that the New York state police means to cope with the situation had been exhausted.

Department officials said they could not authorize the use of Federal troops without permission of the president.

Discovery of the body three miles from the scene of the disaster brought the number of known dead to ten.

Horseshoes Will Be Big Feature At Farm Picnic

Entries Must Be In by August 10th—Sponsored by Farm Bureau to Pick State Representative—National Association Rules Used.

One of the important features of the Annual Farm and Home Bureau Picnic on August 14th, will be the county horseshoe pitching contest. Men from all parts of the county are expected to compete.

The contest is strictly for amateurs. Anyone having won prize money will be eliminated. This is only fair, because it helps a great deal to have had considerable experience pitching before large crowds. Many would be discouraged if professionals were allowed to compete.

The county championship contest is really the elimination contest, to pick the best horseshoe pitcher in Ulster county. The winner will represent the county at the State Fair championships in Syracuse during the week of August 26th. This is officially known as the American Agriculturist-Farm Bureau-State Fair contest.

All the candidates who go to Syracuse will have their transportation paid to and from their home. The winners will receive substantial cash prizes and the state champion gets a beautiful medal in addition.

The county as well as the state contest will be conducted according to the official rules of the National Horseshoe Pitching Association. The committee feels fortunate in having a pitching court at Forsyth Park which is fully as good as any found in New York state. It is open for use at any time.

In order to complete the contest in one day it is necessary that every contestant register by Saturday, August 10, at either the Farm Bureau office or with Frank DuFlon, president of the Kingston Horseshoe Pitching Club. This will allow some time to make definite plans. In all probability a cup will be awarded to the winner and medals wiven to the three leading pitchers.

From present indications there will be thirty or forty entries from all parts of the county. It will be an honor worth achieving to win this contest.

German Liner Breaking Record

New York, July 22 (AP).—The liner Bremen, newest and fastest ocean greyhound, today was near the end of the speediest transatlantic voyage.

Messages from the ship to the offices of the North German Lloyd Line indicated a Sunday's run of 705 miles, one mile more than the world's record she had established on Saturday. Her speed at one time was 28.25 knots an hour; the day's run showed an average speed of 28.2 knots.

Captain Leopold Ziegenbein said in a radio message that he expected to pass Ambrose Lightship, at the entrance to New York harbor, at 3:30 p. m. today. This would enable the ship to dock at 5:30 p. m., four days, 18 hours and 18 minutes after she left Cherbourg. The present record, held by the Mauretania, is five days, two hours, 34 minutes.

Since the voyage of Columbus, which statisticians say would have consumed 69 days had he followed the path of present day liners, the time for the transatlantic passage has been reduced as man's ingenuity increased. In 1819 the side wheel steamer Savannah made the voyage from Savannah, Ga., to Liverpool in 26 days. This was reduced to 11 days, 4 hours in 1840 by the steamer Acadia, which set a new record of 9 days, 21 hours in 1841. In 1889 the liner City of Paris established a record of five days, 19 hours, 18 minutes, which remained unchallenged until 1929, when the Mauretania set the present record.

Drove Car While Drunk; in Jail

Found guilty of operating a motor vehicle while he was in an intoxicated condition Ernest Quick of Atwood was sent to jail for 90 days by Justice of the Peace Oscar Church of High Falls on Saturday, and in addition a fine of $75 was imposed. Quick had been warned to cease a practice of driving an auto while he was intoxicated and because of his failure to heed the warnings of neighbors and friends he was arrested.

Hay Fever

Home Treatment

If you want a really effective treatment for Hay or Rose Fever go right to McBride's Drug store and ask for a bottle of Opex.

Spray the nostrils two or three times a day—oftener if necessary.

You'll be surprised and delighted—not only will Opex soothe and heal the raw inflamed membrane, but it will promptly stop the humiliating discharge. If it fails, get your money back.

If you start to use Opex now the expected attack may not appear—this happened in many cases last year.

The price is but $1.00 and McBride's Drug Store will gladly tell you all about it.

Taxiing Around The Airports

One of the largest airplane hangars in the country is to be built on the Detroit municipal airport. The structure, 1,000 feet long and 200 feet wide, is to be of brick and steel.

Moline, Ill., voters have ratified a five-mill levy for a period of five years to provide funds for purchase and development of a municipal airport. About $250,000 will be realized from the tax. The city intends to borrow money on the levy in order that work may start at once. A site to cost $100,000 is to be purchased.

An east-west runway has been constructed by the department of commerce at the intermediate field at Vermillion, Ohio, site 23, on the Cleveland-New York airway. The new runway is available for use except the eastern end, which is rough. This part will be conditioned in the near future.

Work of lighting Logan field, the Baltimore municipal airport, is to be started at once. Sufficient equipment to obtain the highest department of commerce rating will be placed on the field. Because a federal beacon is near the airport, a beacon flashing a Morse code characteristic will be installed in lieu of the standard airport beacon.

Grading work greatly increasing the size of the available landing area of the Minneapolis municipal airport has been started. Only one portion of the field will be graded at a time so pilots using the field will not be confused. The boundary lights will be moved to take in the new areas as the grading is completed. Red flags will be placed on the light standards for day marking.

Officials of Galveston, Tex., are endeavoring to obtain a site for a municipal airport.

THE OLD SWIMMING HOLE

In the little town I came from
They had no buildings high,
But they had trees and flowers there
And patches of blue sky.

In the little town I lived in
When I was just a lad,
They had no cars or radios,
But, Oh the fun we had!

For when the weather got too hot,
Or we were tired from play,
Then down to the old swimmin' hole
We'd splash our cares away.

And as you read this little book
Forget the business grind,
Think pleasant thoughts, put on a smile,
'Twill bring relief, you'll find.

Our Own Little Questions and Answers.

Which are the most peppery letters in the alphabet? KN (cayenne).

Which two French cities does a pair of baggy, ill-fitting trousers resemble? Toulon and Toulouse.

Why are bakers the most self-denying people? Because they sell what they need (knead) themselves.

What part of a fish weighs the most? The scales.

What nation does a criminal most dread? Condem-nation.

The choir was peeved at the minister and to get even with him all agreed they would not join in singing the hymns at the morning service. But some loyal soul told the preacher about the plot.

"We will now sing that grand old hymn. 'We're Marching to Zion,' the preacher announced, "omitting the first verse."

The second verse begins. 'Let those refuse to sing who never knew our God." The whole choir sang.

Little worry, little achievement.

Parents should be very careful not to let daughter catch them reading the awful books she buys.

On the Rubberneck.

"Ladies and gentlemen," said the megaphone man, "on your right you see a monument erected to a noble cause." "And what does it stand for?" asked a tourist. "Because, madam," said the guide, "it would look silly lying down."

The moving finger writes
And having writ,
Gets cussed for writing
What it's writ.

And speaking of barbers and things, a bald headed man never yet got a hair-cut that somebody in the barber shop didn't suggest to the barber that he ought to give the aforementioned bald headed man reduced rates.

The old fashioned trusting wife is the kind who thinks she will have to go to heaven to see the angels her husband talks about in his sleep.

One Kingston man is swelling around over his friends because his wife makes the best peach dumplings in town, and makes them often.

Magnet's Long Life

The life of a permanent magnet, magnetized in any manner whatever, has never been determined. A magnet made of the best quality of steel, properly heat-treated and aged and used under the best conditions of service would probably deteriorate only a negligible amount in the lifetime of a single observer.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

U. S. Davis Cup Team.

New York, July 22 (AP).—Selection of the United States Davis cup team to play France in the challenge round starting this Friday in Paris, with George Lott of Chicago substituted for Francis T. Hunter of New York, was announced today by the United States Lawn Tennis Association. The other three members are Big Bill Tilden, Wilmer Allison of Austin, Texas, and John Van Ryn of Orange, N. J.

Financial and Commercial

New York, July 22 (AP).—Credit conditions in the stock market were slightly easier today, call money renewing at 7 per cent for the first time in about two weeks, with a fairly plentiful supply available.

Renewed weakness in the motors and heavy profit-taking in the rails contrasted with the strength of the public utilities and electrical equipment issues. In the general list, the main price tendency appeared to be downward. With selling influenced by the speculative belief that a technical "reaction" was in order.

Outside the sharp rise in grain prices, increasing the potential purchasing power of the agricultural regions, the day's principal business news developments consisted of another series of favorable earnings statements. Several of the conservative commission houses urged a lightening of long commitments and extreme caution in the making of new commitments. This undoubtedly brought heavy selling into the market.

General Motors sagged to another new low level below 67 in reflection of speculative disappointment over the June sales statement. Packard, Chrysler, Marmon and Murray Corporations also fell 1 to 2⅞ points.

Merger rumors provided the groundwork for the advance in the public utility issues. North American moved up 4 points to 166⅛ and Detroit Edison 3½ to 325¼, both new high records. Westinghouse Electric extended its gain to 7½ points by touching a new high at 206, and General Electric sold more than 5 points higher. National Power and Light and Columbia Gas also were in brisk demand.

International Cement sank 4½ points to a new low at 74 on tariff uncertainties. Purity Baking, Dupont, American, National Cash Register, Columbia Carbon, Continental Insurance and Postum all sold down 2 to nearly 4 points, and Allied Chemical broke 12.

Quotations given by Parker McElroy & Co., members N. Y. Stock Exchange, 120 Broadway, New York city, branch office, Stuyvesant Hotel.

Cabbage Known to Ancients

The ancients knew many varieties of cabbage, the curled, the ruffed and sprouts. Cauliflower, which entered France in 1604 from Cyprus, had been pronounced by one Roman herbalist the sweetest and pleasantest to taste of all the coleworts, but of no value in medicine, an enemy to the kidneys, unwholesome and hard to digest.

CURACAO GETS TASTE OF OLD PIRATE DAYS

Dutch Island Raided by Band From Mainland

Washington.—In becoming the scene of a surprise attack by a band of bandits, Curacao, small Dutch island of the Caribbean, forsook her slow existence as one of the quietest and most peaceful towns of the West Indies, and flashed back to the rollicking, roaring, bloody days of the Sixteenth and Seventeenth centuries, when this "Spanish Main" was a freebooter's paradise," says a bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic society.

The chief city of the island Willemstad (also called Curacao), a town of nearly 50,000 inhabitants, was attacked during the night of June 5, by a band of 600 men from the South American mainland; the forts and police headquarters were seized; a supply of arms and ammunition was stolen; an American ship was commandeered; and the adventurers set sail for Venezuela with Curacao's governor and its chief of police as hostages.

"As astounding as this exploit appears to the Twentieth century observer," continues the bulletin, "it is only a repetition, with slight alterations, of experiences from the island's past. Curacao has a fine harbor, one of the finest in the West Indies. This fact was recognized from the day that a Spanish explorer, Ojeda, a friend of Columbus, discovered the island in 1499; and at intervals the great naval powers have tried to claim the harbor.

Settled by Spanish.

"It was given by the Spanish emperor to the governor of Venezuela in 1622 and some time afterward a Spanish settlement was established on it. The Dutch captured it in 1634 and it served a decade later as political meeting ground for Peter Stuyvesant, who afterward was made governor of New Amsterdam, predecessor of New York city.

"Curacao suffered attacks in 1673 and 50 years later, both times from the French. On the second occasion the French were driven out by the British, who remained in possession of the island for two years. After the Dutch regained control, Curacao experienced other attacks from English warships, and the island was under British control from 1805 to 1815.

"Since the latter date the Dutch have been undisputed owners of the barren little isle; but there was at least a threat from an entirely different quarter in 1908 when German men of war put into Curacao during their famous debt-collection demonstration against Venezuela. It was rumored that Germany dreamed of making the harbor a base for control of the West Indies.

"In spite of a population more than half made up of negroes and mulattoes, and with considerable numbers of Jews, Spaniards and South Americans, Curacao (or Willemstad, if one chooses) is intensely Dutch in appearance. Dutch cleanliness has been successfully transplanted to this tropical site, and the main streets, gutters, sidewalks, and walls are spick and span. Only in some of the narrow alleys of the negro quarter is a lack of cleanliness to be noted.

"Curacao is approximately 40 miles long by three to seven miles wide, and lies 41 miles off the coast of Venezuela. The island is quite dry and produces little. Practically all food is imported, and even drinking water is brought from the mainland for those who can afford it. Others drink rain water caught from the roofs and stored in cisterns.

Valuable as Trading Station.

"The island's chief value is as a trading station, a value to which both its location and its harbor contribute. Lying just off the northern coast of South America, and controlled by a country famous for its peaceful and efficient political and commercial methods, it makes an ideal distributing and transfer point between its potentially wealthy, but sometimes turbulent neighbors on the one hand, and Europe and North America on the other. Willemstad harbor is shaped like a banjo, with a narrow neck for an entrance and a large circular basin for anchorage and wharf locations. The town is built on both sides of the narrow entrance channel and along the flanks of the basin. A pontoon bridge crosses the channel and is swung aside to permit the passage of ships. A sidelight on the town's population is furnished by the tolls charged on this bridge. 'Persons wearing shoes' pay 4-5 of one cent, 'persons without shoes,' 2-5 of one cent, for each passage.

"The well-to-do Dutch of Curacao make the gesture of maintaining country places on the barren stretches outside the city, but few plants, other than cacti and aloes can be coaxed into growing throughout most of the island. The several ostrich ranches do better into the picture.

"The famous liqueur, curacao, is still distilled in small quantities on the island from the small bitter oranges grown locally, but the industry in the main has been taken over by Amsterdam.

"Petroleum is the greatest single factor in Curacao's present-day activity, and one of the largest refineries in the world is maintained on the island. The crude petroleum is brought over in tank barges from the rich Venezuelan field around Lake Maracaibo. The numerous refined products are shipped from Curacao to various parts of the world."

TARIFF AND FILIPINOS.

The speech of Speaker Roxas of the Philippine House of Representatives at the tariff hearings is reported to have been applauded by at least three groups in the American Congress—"the sincere advocates of Philippine independence, the beet-sugar-at-any-price men, and those who do not know that oratory is a gift in which all Filipines excel". But why should the beet sugar representatives applaud a Filipino who demanded "complete, immediate and absolute independence" for his country? The explanation given is that the beet sugar interests, "reproached with the argument that to restrict Philippine sugar while retaining the islands would violate the moral obligation of the United States toward its wards", have "changed their phrase to 'Abandon the Philippines'," knowing that in that case sugar imports from those islands would no longer be entitled to preference.

They prize protection for their business above the supposed value to their country of the Philippines, while Speaker Roxas and other Filipino leaders value independence above the economic advantage of a preferential tariff—which must be accepted as sufficient proof of their sincerity. Incidentally it is of interest to note that Mr. Roxas is in person a refutation of the argument that the Filipinos are not sufficiently civilized to be capable of independence, for he not only 'excelled' in oratory but spoke fluent English, which is reported to have been "both colorful and correct and beautifully enunciated"—his performance in general being such that it "must have filled many a Congressman with envy."

A HAPLESS RECTOR.

The hen-pecked husband in one of Dickens's novels who described life as "one long demnition grind" is brought to mind by the story of the tribulations and exasperations of the Rev. Allen Barrett, the 76-year-old Episcopal vicar of Claygate, England. Not that he was hen-pecked above the average, but that he was hard hit by the "slings and arrows of outrageous fortune", one of these being his meagre salary which, after successive slight raisings, attained the magnificent proportions of $1,150 a year with free rent. In his desperate struggle to make both ends meet in this expensive modern world, and in the leading society of his locality to which his profession made his family eligible, the elderly clergyman was forced to resort to expedients which scandalized his parishioners. For one thing, he "advertised for boarders", thus bringing "his profession into disrepute".

Finally, in his dire need and hope of a little gain, he dared to publish a booklet in which he advertised a system of respiration which would "add to women's charms", announcing it as "an aid to beauty which will enable ladies to do away with rouge and cosmetics—no more bust developers". For this "scandalous" performance he is now on trial by his ecclesiastical superiors, one accuser testifying that he had actually been heard to say "damn" twice—possibly when the grocer was pressing for impossible payment for food long since digested. It is likely that by now the Rev. Allen Barrett is inclined to believe that life may be even more than "just one thing after another" and is pretty nearly convinced that the Dickens character was right when he said it was "one long demnition grind".

Dr. T. M. Dishington tells a convention of British doctors that drugs are sapping the vitality of the race. "It is evidently a profitable business," he says, "for those experimenting upon the sick as the right of their profession. There are more of these deadly drugs taken nowadays than ever before. It is a black spot on the fair page of twentieth-century civilization." So it is, though most of the hurtful drugging is done by the patients themselves rather than by physicians. Drugs are easy to get, powerful and comparatively cheap. Naturally they are abused. There is really less reason for taking drugs today than ever before, in spite of the innumerable ailments afflicting mankind. With knowledge spreading concerning such fundamental means of health as vitamins and sunlight, including the artificial ultra-violet, it becomes more possible to dispense with harmful or doubtful drugs.

It was an old custom, prevailing for thousands of years, for nations or rulers making peace treaties to give hostages as pledges of faith. Then if one side broke a pact, the other could kill or torture the relatives or friends held as hostages, and often did. Time and softening custom swept away that barbarism. But savagery against war prisoners continued until, during our Civil War, President Lincoln issued an order forbidding reprisals against prisoners in Union camps. Now the diplomatic conference of 46 nations, formulating a new war code at Geneva, has adopted that principle for universal practice. No more will one nation punish or neglect captured enemies. That is, if the rule is kept.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By JAMES W. BARTON, M. D.

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act).

DEVELOPING ARCHES.

I often wonder if folks with flat painful feet ever think what is happening to their whole body—physically and mentally—as they pound along.

Nature provided a wonderful springy arch in the foot which was meant to take the "jar" off the whole body.

When this arch loses its spring, and the foot goes flat on the ground then the whole weight of the body is allowed to reach or strike the ground. The jar from this goes right up the legs and spinal column to the brain.

Nature has put cushions between the bones of the spinal column which lessen the jar somewhat, but nothing can take the place of a good springy well arched foot.

One of the disappointing things you see every day is the individual quite young, who has adopted arch supports and seems quite satisfied to use them the rest of his life.

Now there are times when it may be necessary to wear arch supports for a while. You have been sick, or perhaps of a good weight, and need support for your feet if you are to get about at all.

But flat feet can be avoided or corrected in the majority of cases if you are willing to devote ten to twenty minutes of your time daily for that purpose.

The simplest method is to walk across the room on the outside edges of the feet with the toes turned inward.

This forms the foot almost into the shape of a claw, and the more arched and claw like you can get your foot the more you are developing the muscles that hold up the arch.

Walking across the room this way, say six times night and morning, is necessary.

Trying to pick up a ball or other object with the foot also develops the arch.

Major von Gruber, a German medical officer, has invented a device where the patient is required to walk up and down a sort of staircase which makes it necessary to walk on outside edges of his feet, and to grip or claw the little wooden steps in order to hold on.

If your arches are right down and rigid, then a properly fitted arch support is necessary.

Don't wear arch supports until you have tried to develop an arch.

If you fail to develop it, then you are justified in wearing arch supports.

For the Love of a Lady

by Jeffery Farnol

SYNOPSIS: In the delightfully romantic setting of a garden arbour under a brilliant moon, the errant misunderstandings of Helen and Richard vanish, and in their place comes tender love. Flung swelled against Richard's own, replacing the look of hot eye-rage—that smaller circles were the fallen arm and serpent's head—and the way she lost to the masked man who also took Sir Richard's sword, found beside Julian's body. Later, ends the night and that day, Richard, crouching at the radio at the inn, hears himself condemned as villain, and slayer, of the unquent. The jury pronounces a verdict of wilful murder against him.

Chapter 24

DICK FULLALOVE

SIR RICHARD, secure in his hiding-place in the inn, sat staring, seeking an answer to a strange puzzle of a cat's-eye ring, a blood-stained riding cloak, the damning testimony of Viscount Brocklehurst and Tom Pitt. Finally, he was roused by John Bly, the landlord, bringing his supper.

John, setting down his tray, jerked thumb at the judas in the corner:

"You heered all the evidence, Sir Richard?"

"Every word, John. I've heard myself proved so absolute a murderer that I blame none for so believing me." Here Sir Richard fell to his supper with hearty appetite.

"Sir," inquired John, "did ye chance to notice this here Titus Oldcraft at the inquest?"

"Ay, a cunning looking fellow, John."

"Ah, 'e be all o' that, sir, and his comrades the same. There's three besides him."

"So here," said Sir Richard, "here under one roof we have Viscount Brocklehurst, Captain Despard, Titus Oldcraft, Tom Pitt and myself. But of 'em all Tom Pitt is my danger; were he away, the thing would be simple. Egad, 'twill need all old Truffeni's arts."

"But, sir, she be a true wise one."

"Did you send her my message, John?"

"Surely, sir, by Wentzelow, he were at th' inquest. Sir, d'ye know as Titus Oldcraft be away to Weare tonight with a search-warrant?"

"Ay, so I heard. 'Tis convenient hiding-place this, and I shall be regretful to leave it, but I would not have ye dragged to prison as my accomplice after the fact."

"Sir," quoth John, "that be like you. But years ago I was concerned in business on the High Toby and . . . Titus Oldcraft suspicions me. So ye see, it don't matter."

"John," said Sir Richard, "trouble not for what is so long past; these long years of honest dealing are thy vindication. Howbeit, tonight, John, I flit hence and vanish."

* * * * *

"So n-never," sobbed Angela, meekly tearful, "never now shall I wed, the dream is past! For, oh my Helen, this p-poor heart is quite broke a-shattered beyond repair!"

"And so," nodded my lady, "I have quite decided to make you the Marchioness of Merivale. Now of your late most detestable lordling lover. Tell me all, how you contrived to lose the wretch."

"Alas, my Helen, 'twas in a bower. 'Eustace,' sighed I, 'now must I humbly to thee confess that this h-heart, now thine, was once another's, a heart all confiding but ——'"

"Ah!" cried my lady, "'Tis small wonder the poor fool fled thee like the plague—and yet sure none but arrant fool could look into these eyes and doubt their purity! The man was a dastardly numbskull and thou'rt well rid of him! And faith, Angela, how you could ever stoop to love a creature with such name as Eustace passes me. A man should have a man's name and not a hiss!"

"And what think you is a man's name, Helen dear?"

"Lord, there be aplenty——"

"Yes, my love, but in especial—Dick!" sighed Angela.

"Oh, miss, and what will you suggest?"

"Only that you sometimes ride o' nights to meet a—Richard!"

"Ah—who told you this?"

"Why, Helen . . . 'twas but a word spoke me by Viscount Brocklehurst."

Now as they turned into a walk that led between tall yew hedges, they came full upon a tall country fellow hailed with a rake.

"Why, who are you?" demanded my lady.

"The odd man, ma'm," he answered, touching the flopping brim of his shapeless hat.

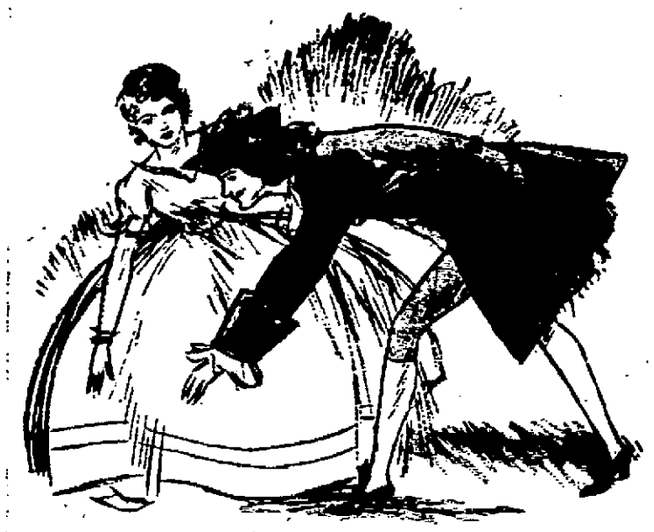
"Odd man, what is your name?"

"Dick, ma'm. Dick Fullalove, I be!"

For a moment my lady stared on this man, but saw only the crown of his weather-beaten hat, a wide, flat back and two very brown muscular arms.

"And there," laughed Angela, as they crossed the smooth lawn, "there is your man with a man's name. Dick, otherwise Richard, my dear soul! And—full o' love."

Some half hour later, the Marquis, making his profoundest reverence to this bewitching pair, opened his languid eyes rather wide to take in all the radiant love-liness of this slimly elegant creature.



Helen heard Brocklehurst's hissing gasp; both reached for the note.

"Um . . . ah! . . ." stammers the Marquis, "'pon my soul . . . the day. . . . very warm!"

"Truly, sir, come we into the shade," laughed my lady. "Thus, my dear Ned, this Angela o' mine is creature so bitter set 'gainst all man-kind, so disdainful o' love and scornful o' matrimony that she contemplates a nunnery!"

"Heaven forbid!" quoth the Marquis.

"She is set in her determination, Ned. Alas, nought is there may save her from herself and immolation except——"

"What, madam, what?"

"Except—oh, plagues and scorpions—there is that odious Brocklehurst! Let me hide!"

But the Viscount had seen them, and forthwith minced across the wide lawn. So perforce they bowed, all four.

"Madam," said the Viscount, proffering slim hand, "shall we walk?" My lady hesitated but, observing Angela's shy-sweet eyes and the unusually wide-awake air of the Marquis, she moved away with the Viscount along the yew-shaded walk.

"Helen," said he in his quick, nervous manner, "Helen, I've adored since first I met thee."

"Then would you'd met another!"

"Ah, do not flout me; you were wiser not. When, when wilt marry me?"

"Never, Viscount!"

"Howbeit, yet I do adore thee, Helen!"

"Heigho!" sighed she. "We find the man becomes monotonous."

"What o' this—country squire, this Guyfford?"

"And now," sighed my lady, "we will retire, for the man becometh an odious impertinent!"

"Forgive . . . forgive . . . pity me!" he pleaded, but through shut teeth. "Truly I am ever your most obedient servant——"

"And tattle of me with my servants!" she retorted disdainfully.

She heard the soft hiss of his breath, saw his staring eyes dilate and, following his gaze, behold a piece of torn paper, read thereon two words in straggling scrawl, then he had snatched it up.

My lady Helen stood for a moment, gasping, while the Viscount unfolded the message. Before he had opportunity, however, to scan its contents, my lady thrust forth imperious hand, demanding the missive.

WEST SHOKAN.

West Shokan, July 22.—This section was visited on Thursday night by a refreshing rain. Although not heavy enough to drench the parched earth it was of untold value to the withering crops. An old timer says he never recalls hoeing corn with the ground so dry as it has been this week.

Michael Dwyer is making satisfactory progress with his haying, having such efficient assistance as Allan Rose with Mr. Lynn's team, John Henricksen and Samuel Cassolina.

Professor and Mrs. Condon were Thursday evening callers at the home of Mrs. Watson Bishop.

Since completing her course at Spencer's Business College Miss Florence Kelder has secured an excellent position in New York city, being employed in the same office as her brother, Lawrence.

Joseph Steinlauf has employment with Mr. Hayes at his summer place in Watson Hollow.

Mr. Hartenstein is making good headway with the reshingling of his house.

Mr. McRoberts has sold nearly the whole of his flock of Leghorn hens. They are from the stock of the Hickory Hill Poultry Farm and have been laying consistently since last November. Mr. and Mrs. McRoberts expect to go back to Detroit in the near future.

"Down in Maine" scored another big success when presented by the "Grange Players" at Mt. Tremper Hall on Wednesday evening.

A number of local parties attended the dance at the I. O. O. F. Hall at Tongore on Wednesday evening.

Another big dance will mark the climax of local social affairs of the week at Colange Hall on Saturday night.

William Jones is under the care of Dr. DuMond of Tongore.

The fact may not be generally known that Walter A. Wilmont, who was superintendent of transportation at Brown Station during the construction of the Ashokan Reservoir, died at the Masonic Home in Utica a few weeks ago. He was a member of Kingston Lodge, No. 10, F. & A. M.

Robert Thompson is helping William Burgher with his haying.

Dorville Boice of Tongore made deliveries here on Thursday.

Charles Hesley and Elwyn Davis finished their haying on Tuesday.

Mrs. Ralph McRoberts is spending a week at home while her husband is at the General Electric plant in Schenectady. They expect to leave the first of next week for Detroit and start housekeeping there.

Lauren Hesley made a motor trip to the Adirondacks over last week end. A delightful trip is reported.

The West Shokan baseball club is expected to meet the Mt. Tremper "Mountaineers" on Sunday afternoon.

William Burgher has purchased from the Everett and Treadwell Company of Kingston a John Deere one-horse mowing machine.

Superintendent of Highways Ernest Eckert has been overseeing this week the removal of the stone crushing plant from Samsonville to Ashokan, for the purpose of starting work on the stretch of improved highway to be constructed there.

The mountain huckleberry season is approaching and many a wistful glance is being cast toward High Point, the mecca of huckleberrydom, whence after the haying season local pickers will be wending their way.

COTTON IS HAVING ITS DAY SHEER WEAVES HAVING GAINED RECOGNITION

New York.—The cotton voile print making its popularity register in season when printed chiffons seem to be worn for all occasions and by all types of women. Printed voiles easily mistaken for chiffons and to be had this season in charming colors and designs and made on lines identical with chiffons, which is another way of saying that the timeless cotton voile has arrived. The coolness and charm of the pastel cotton voile piped in white is too well known to need a brief here. This type of dress is exceedingly French in line and when hand made and perfectly hand drawn, is always in good taste. The silhouette of such cotton frocks naturally has widened to meet the requirements of the day. Skirts are wider as well as longer. Sleeves have met with a considered and gratifying response. While the waist has been highlighted and ging-

6459. Pique or crepe is suggested for the development of this design. It lends itself well also to cotton prints, to printed linen and tub silk. The waist portions blouse slightly above the belt. The skirt portions are arranged in plaits that form panels. The dress may be finished with the long sleeve which has fullness above a narrow band cuff. A jabot trims the front of the waist below the V neck.

The pattern for this pleasing model is cut in 5 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. To make a 38 inch size will require 3½ yards of 39 inch material if made with long sleeves. Without sleeves it will require 2¾ yards. To finish with wide bias binding as illustrated will require 4½ yards. The width of the dress at the lower edge with plait fulness extended is 2¼ yards.

Eleanor Gunn Says

That lingerie collar and cuff details are almost essential to chic these days, the softened and accented collar line being generally sponsored by smart women.

Moire is insinuating itself into the affections of fashionables and is chosen for many purposes among which may be mentioned, evening frocks and wraps, suits, dresses and bathing suits.

The lace coat is an evening favorite and is not removed while dancing. They top either plain or printed frocks and are often themselves colored.

Printed chiffons retain their tremendous popularity while cottons rival chiffons in smart circles for all but evening wear.

Agnes has concentrated on bonnet types and Reboux has scored with large off the face hats, but berets continue to attract women in general.

Suntan hose and white with brown footwear seems to be generally preferred this summer.

The princess silhouette sets out of the essentially evening mode and is worn for afternoon and in such diaphanous material as chiffon.

Waistlines high are preferred, waistlines low are tolerated when high ones are impossible to wear, but waistlines accented somewhere are essential.

Peeping around the corner of fall fashions one is bewildered by their curves and flowing movement, this applying even to fur coats.

A few weeks ago the young people of the Epworth League cleaned out their treasury and pocketbooks to buy pulpit hangings for the new Methodist Church. These consisted of two crimson Bible markers, with gold embroidered monograms and turned ivory holders, the ribbon being about three feet long and a crimson silk desk scarf about eighteen by twenty inches with a gold cross. These have been stolen from the church. There is absolutely no market for such things except for church use and they can be very easily recognized. It is suggested that the person who took them return them immediately as the church can use them and they cannot. The trustees offer a suitable reward for their recovery or for information that will lead to their recovery. Please apply to the parsonage next to the church on Grove street. They are very valuable, but absolutely useless for any other purpose. Stealing from a church, known as sacrilege, has its own particular penalties.

A warm stuffy day—crowds—excitement. How quickly at such times does perspiration make us guilty of "B. O." We can't always tell when we offend, because we become insensitive to ever-present odors. But we can't avoid perspiring. Our pores give off as much as a quart of odor-causing waste daily.

Crowds See "The Cradle Snatchers"

(By F. Gardner Clough.)

"The Cradle Snatchers", a farce comedy in three acts, put on at the Woodstock Playhouse Thursday, Friday and Saturday of last week, drew a great many people from Kingston and Saugerties for the performances.

It is a typical show from the sophisticated maelstrom of that Mecca of all theatres—Gotham. Indeed, the reviewer found it quite a shock to walk, from the hysterical atmosphere of inflicted hilarity at the play, out into a rural night of gentle calm and peace when the play was ended. The change from the flippant and risque conversation of the actors, the thinness and emptiness of the whole import of the play, the abruptness of going to an outside world of content, is one that "The Cradle Snatchers" made emphatic. It was a feeling often come from theatres, but emphasized by the gulf between the associations of the play and those of the surroundings.

For the New Yorker, who escapes from New York things, this play seemed irreverent; for the yokel, aching for a sight of the New York gaiety and Life (he spells it with a capital), this play would be a gigantic revelation.

As for the actors, there was some delightful and delicious work presented. One was kept in laughter from the beginning to the end. Surprise after surprise evolves from the plan of three married women, who use extreme methods to bring their errant hubbies to terms. Of the cast, Jane Meredith, as Susan Martin, was never better. She gave the role the proper amount of lightness, the touch of humor and facetiousness necessary to make her stand out as the central figure on the stage though her role itself didn't give her this prominence. Her closing remarks, deportment, acting, brought the house down with a roar of laughter and applause. Philip Brandon, who played as Jose Vallejo, was likewise successful; a bit of over-acting on his part seeemed to give the farce touch to the comedy lines given him to present.

All of the cast did well. Sara Haden and Albert Lewis promoted a love scene that was uncommonly awkward by intention, and witty by result. Thelma Paige was delightful in her part. Of the three young girls who enter the last minute, with something to say, was Nan Reasoner of Woodstock, who gave her lines in a real professional manner.

The Woodstock Playhouse offers something more serious for this week, when "Conscience", a play written by Don Mullally, with Kathleen Robinson playing the stellar role, will be presented.

Sixth Week at Elverhoj Theatre

The Elverhoj Theatre at Milton-on-Hudson will ring up the curtain this evening on the sixth week of its summer season with "The Romantic Young Lady" of G. Martinez-Sierra, in which Mary Ellis starred in New Lork city. For this production the theatre is fortunate to have as a guest star Mme. Maria Ouspenskaya, formerly of the Moscow Art Theatre, who came over from Russia with Richard Boleslavsky. Hailed as the great character actress of America, Madame Ouspenskaya was one of the directors of the American Laboratory Theatre in New York in which M. Boleslavsky has spent much of his time in recent years.

"The Romantic Young Lady" is a comedy translated from the Spanish and in the title role will be Alice Wood from "Excess Baggage." A cast of 11 is used in this play which treats in beguiling fashion of the romance of a young Spanish girl and a popular novelist. It was one of the most successful productions ever put on by the Neighborhood Playhouse, New York.

In a way the production of "The Romantic Young Lady" marks a reunion of many actors who were identified with the American Laboratory Theatre. Richard Skinner, who was with Mme. Ouspenskaya in "The Taming of the Shrew," Arthur Sircom, the director, Anne Davenport Seymour have all worked under her at the American Laboratory Theatre.

So far the theatre has produced "The Private Secretary," "Young Woodley," "Hay Fever," "Mr. Pim Passes By" and "Saturday's Children." Plays still to be produced include "John Ferguson," "Pomeroy's Past" and "Tweedles."

YOU are vitally interested and need a copy—provided—you drive a car or truck, you own a car or truck which is operated by an employee.

There have been so many inquiries concerning the provisions of the new SAFETY RESPONSIBILITY LAW that we have published its full requirements in this booklet.

The New Law becomes effective September 1st. But, if you meantime have an accident and a judgment results therefrom on or after September 1st, your registration license on every car you own and operator's license will be suspended unless the judgment is paid within fifteen days.

The Law provides that a Public Liability and Property Damage Insurance Policy is sufficient proof of financial responsibility.

Troy's Tribute to Walter C. Black

Former Ulster County Man Who Died Recently in Troy, Alabama, Where He Had Long Been One of the Most Prominent Citizens.

In its account of the death and funeral of the Hon. Walter C. Black, the last surviving son of the late Daniel Black and an uncle of Peter A. Black of this city, the Troy, Alabama, Messenger of July 11, says:

Judge Walter Crispell Black, one of the leading business men of the city, died Wednesday evening at 11:15 o'clock after an extended illness from a complication of diseases. Even though he had been in ill health for some months his death came as a distinct shock to his family and a large circle of friends and business associates over the state.

Judge Black was one of Troy's foremost business men and was a director in many institutions throughout the state and at the time of his death was chairman of the board of directors of the Farmers' and Merchants' National Bank, one of the oldest and soundest financial institutions in Southeast Alabama. However, the major part of Judge Blacks' efforts were devoted to his large wholesale grocery interests.

The deceased was a native of the state of New York, near the city of Kingston, and came to Troy in 1889, being associated with the builders of the Alabama Middling Railroad, which is now the Atlantic Coast Line. It was here that he met Miss Mary Henderson, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Henderson, who became his bride and who survives. Three children blessed this union, two of whom survive, Peter C. Black and Mrs. James Talbot. Another son, James Black, preceded him to the grave. Five grandchildren also survive.

After his marriage Judge Black made Troy his home and immediately assumed a position as one of the leaders in church, business, fraternal and civic circles of the city. He was a member of the First Baptist Church and was from time to time honored with all the positions of trust of a layman and for many years served as superintendent of the Sunday school. He was prominently identified in fraternal circles and served as master of the Masonic Lodge and head of other fraternal organizations with which he held membership.

The deceased served out an unexpired term as Probate Judge of Pike county, but did not offer for election; he served as mayor of Troy for at least two terms and during one of his administrations as such promoted and made possible the splendid water works system which now blesses the city.

The entire city is grieved at the death of this splendid public spirited citizen, who stood ever ready to help promote any worthwhile project looking to the spiritual or material welfare of this section.

Funeral services for Judge Walter Crispell Black were conducted at the family residence this morning by Dr. F. L. Hardy, pastor of the First Baptist Church, assisted by Dr. J. O. Colley, of the Baptist Orphanage, says the Messenger of July 12. Beautiful hymns, "Lead Kindly Light" and "Crossing the Bar," were sung by Mrs. C. B. Goldthwaite, Mrs. Herman Jernigan, Mrs. Key Murphree, Mrs. J. H. Wilkerson, Clay Harris and Jake Chaffin. Interment took place at the family lot in Oakwood Cemetery.

Active pall bearers were:

W. E. Blair, W. H. May, M. W. Winslett, Jesse Spivey, James Allred, Gillis Green, E. E. Anthony, Riley Green.

Honorary pall bearers were:

John Carable, Frank Jones, Fred Henderson, Lane Enzor, Brady Owens, W. C. Cameron, P. U. Brown, Trammell Henderson and Dr. Broughton, Andalusia; Druid Conrad, Troy; A. F. Merrill and Robert Tyner, Dozier; Dr. E. M. Shackelford, Josh Copeland, E. R. Partridge, Charles Henderson, W. W. Haralson, Prof. M. D. Pace, Dr. H. T. McKinnon, Sr., Ed. Dunbar, Levy Powell, Randolph Head, Key Murphree, Dr. Jim Murphree, Fred Jernigan, Lamar Jernigan, John Wilkerson, Fred Nall, Charles Simpson, B. M. Talbot, Sr., L. B. Bashinsky, M. H. Carter, Joel D. Murphee, E. C. Bassett, Pink Freeman, Bill Chaffin, Fox Henderson and Judge W. H. Samford of Montgomery, Ala.

Mr. Black was an annual visitor to Kingston and took great pleasure in renewing boyhood friendships. For several years he had been a welcome visitor at one or more meetings of the Kingston Rotary Club, he having been president of the Troy Rotary Club several years ago. He was also very prominent in the Knights of Pythias lodge in Troy and in other fraternal and social organizations.

Father Carey Again Honored

Elected Provincial of Eastern Province of the Passionate Order —Spent Boyhood Days in West Hurley.

The Rev. Justin Carey, under whose direction the Passionate monastery of Our Lady of Sorrows in West Springfield, Mass., was built in 1926, was today elected provincial of the Eastern Province of the Passionate Order. This makes Father Carey head of the monasteries east of Ohio and as far south as North Carolina.

The election was made by superiors from all monasteries of the province, who have been in conference for the past week at the monastery in West Springfield. In 1925 Father Carey was first elected provincial of the order for a term of three years, but could not succeed himself. Following his term of office in 1926 he was chosen as counsellor to the provincial and assigned as a superior to build a new monastery in Jamaica, Long Island, which work is now well under way. He will again serve as head of the order until July, 1932. During the past three years, Father Emanuel Carey, a nephew, was superior at the monastery in West Springfield.

Father Carey comes from an old West Hurley family. The scenes of his boyhood are now under water, they having been taken by New York city for the Ashokan reservoir. There are a number of residents of Kingston who will remember him from their boyhood days. He left his home at West Hurley at a very early age to study as a missionary in the Order of the Passionates and has risen to its head. His only living brother, Michael B. Carey, resides at 52 Lindsley avenue. It was Father Justin, which name was taken on ordination, who officiated at the wedding of Miss Katharine A. Diamond to his nephew, Eugene B. Carey. His neice, Miss Mae L. Carey, was married in the chapel of the Monastery he is now building in Jamaica to Thomas J. Comerford.

Boston (AP).—New England will spend approximately $50,000,000 on surfaced roads during 1929, figures gathered from the several states by the New England Council reveal.

In Maine $6,500,000 will be expended, including federal aid money. New Hampshire expects that expenditures for building or maintaining surfaced roads will aggregate more than $7,660,000. Expenditures for similar purposes in Vermont are expected to reach $4,200,000.

Massachusetts will expend, including all forms of construction and maintenance, about $15,000,000. In Rhode Island about $4,500,000 will be used for surfaced highways. Connecticut has a program that will call for the expenditure of $11,000,000 for construction and repair.

A total of 658 miles of new hard surfaced roads are to be constructed in New England this year. Many more miles of highways will be reconstructed or resurfaced.

The thing in the world I am not afraid of is fear, and with good reason; that passion alone, in the trouble of it, exceeding all other accidents. —Montaigne.

COOL RADIATORS IN HOT WEATHER

Common Summer Troubles Usually Due to a Lack of Forethought.

Most motor drivers find difficulty in keeping their radiators reasonably cool in the sweltering days of July and August. Service stations, in town and city, are practically filled, some days, with these panting iron horses with heat afflicted "hazards." Overheating and other common hot weather troubles are usually due to mistakes that can be easily avoided. The main points which require attention are briefly outlined below.

Do you understand the motor's cooling system thoroughly? If not, now is the time to go over it carefully and find out all there is to know about it. See that the flow of water is not impeded by any sort of obstruction and that the overflow pipe is not bent below the level of the base of the radiator filler. Be sure that the overflow pipe is not clogged or flattened.

Clean Radiator.

Is the radiator clean? The front of the radiator should be free from dirt, license plates and signs. Also, the back of the radiator should be unobstructed so that nothing will impede the circulation of the air.

Does the fan turn freely and is the belt tension right? The fan should be clean and its bearings should be well greased. A good test is to turn the fan by hand with the engine shut off. If it is possible to slip the belt easily, but not possible to spin the fan, the tension is right.

Is the carburetor choke in proper repair so that it opens all the way? Better open the seasonal shutter on the hot-air tube. Is the float level correct? If too high slight flooding will cause on over-rich mixture.

Does the ignition system furnish a spark of sufficient strength? A weak spark due to excessive lubrication of the magneto, dirty breaker or distributor, or weak magnets, will have an effect similar to late spark timing and overheating will result.

Are the valve tappets properly adjusted? They should have from .008 to .010 inch clearance, which may be gauged by about the thickness of an ordinary postcard.

Are the cylinders free from carbon? If not, remove it.

Oil Reservoir.

Is the oil in the crankcase clean? Gasoline, dirt or other foreign substances will impair the quality of the oil in the crankcase, resulting in overheated parts due to insufficient lubrication. The oil reservoir should be drained every 1,500 miles, the walls thoroughly cleaned and a fresh supply of oil should then be put into the crankcase.

Are you using the right grade of oil? Because of the increased temperatures it is often advisable in summer to use a heavier grade of oil than in winter.

Are the exhaust pipe and muffler clean? Practically 40 per cent of the heat of combustion escapes through the exhaust. It follows, therefore, that if any part of the exhaust system is obstructed a part of this heat must be carried off by the cooling water, which will naturally raise its temperature.

Are the brakes free? A dragging break will cause overheating in hot weather that might not occur in cool weather.

Three Conditions Cause Gasoline Preignition

Preignition of the gasoline charge in the cylinder is something that the motorist may find more prevalent as the compression ratio of the engine is raised. Usually, one of three things is responsible for this condition which results in a diminution of engine power.

These are exceptionally hot exhaust valves, high temperature of the spark plug electrodes, or a bit of incandescent carbon on the cylinder head or the piston. Knowledge of the causes should facilitate the elimination of the trouble.

THE MOTOR QUIZ

(How Many Can You Answer?)

Q.—What should be done when difficulty is encountered in shifting gears?

Ans.—Engage the clutch a few seconds while the engine is running then disengage it and try again.

Q.—What should be the position of the left foot when driving?

Ans.—Not on the clutch. On the floor.

Q.—Will a clogged oil filter result in damage to the engine?

Ans.—No. The filter merely ceases to function and the oil is by-passed. Unless the filter is renewed after 10,000 miles it becomes necessary to change the oil every 500 miles, as against 2,000 with the filter in proper shape.

Q.—What causes a dirty bulb to burn out more rapidly than a clean one?

Ans.—The dirt prevents the radiation of heat as fast as is necessary, thereby shortening the life of the bulb.

Much Care Is Required in Adjustment of Plugs

Simple as it may seem, the job of adjusting the points of spark plugs is something requiring considerable care. The center point should never be bent. Adjust for proper clearance with the point that is connected to the grounded part of the plug.

A good average adjustment is a clearance the thickness of a thin dime, but a dime is not a handy tool to bend the longer point if the clearances are not just right. Not having a plug gauge, the next best thing is to use the blunt side of a thin penknife blade. Use it as a small lever to press the point the way you want it to go.

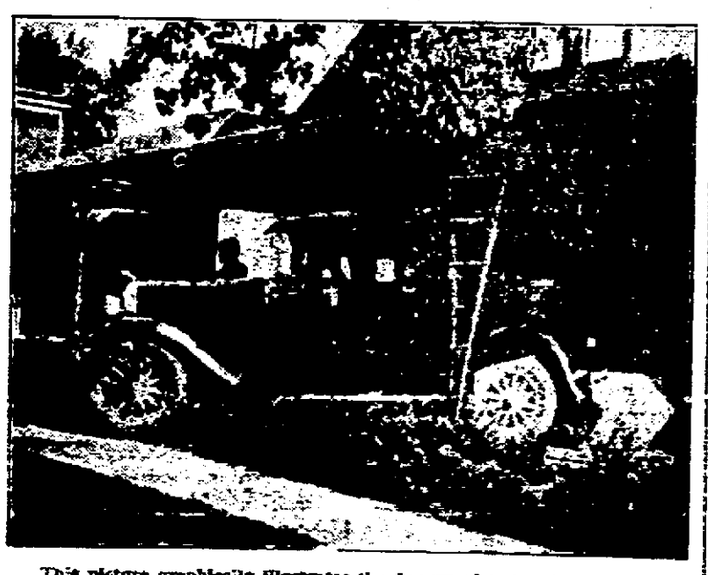
OBJECT LESSON IN AUTOMOBILE SAFETY



This picture graphically illustrates the danger of motorists parking their machines without locking. In this case the driver parked on a steep incline at Missouri Valley, Iowa, but failed to set the brake. An inquisitive little boy climbed into the driver's seat and let out the clutch with the result you see here. Fortunately he jumped before the collision.

Citizens' Band Pleased Inmates

Sunday afternoon the Citizens' Band, under the leadership of Harry Mahenbelder, motored to the Institution for Defective Delinquents at Napanoch, where a concert was rendered from 2 to 4 o'clock. The concert was greatly enjoyed by the 727 inmates at the institution and every number on the program was heartily applauded. The closing number was the Star Spangled Banner, and without a word of prompting every inmate arose to his feet and stood at attention while the national air was being played. The members of the band rendered the concert without charge, permission to play having been granted by the local Musicians' Union.

LANDLORD PILOTS PLANE IN AIR THOUGH BLIND

Marlow, Okla. (AP)—"Flying blind" has its most literal meaning in the case of George W. Carter, 32-year-old Marlow pilot.

Other aviators "fly blind" in storms or fogs, but Carter must do so all the time. He has been sightless since he was 15 years old.

With the aid of his co-pilot, Don Clayton, Carter flies his own planes and flies them well. He can take off and maneuver ships in the air without difficulty and calls on Clayton to take the controls when he wants to land.

"You can feel your way off the ground and around the air all right," Carter explains, "but feeling out a landing is something that simply can't be done."

Because he cannot make a landing Carter is not eligible for a pilot's license. For the past two years, however, he has flown his two planes without an accident.

He abandoned automobiles for speedier transportation to travel through southern Oklahoma, where he makes regular visits to more than 350 tenant farms.

Two Oil Stations Were Burglarized

Sunday night two oil stations were burglarized here, one on North Front street and the other on Foxhall avenue. The Otis gas station on Foxhall avenue had all of its three gas pumps badly damaged by the thieves who also broke into the station and stole what money they could find. At the Tydol station on North Front street at Converse street, the pumps were also broken open and the station entered and some money and tobacco stolen.

It is thought the burglarizing of the two stations is by the same gang which made an attempt to break into one of the gas stations over the Washington avenue viaduct, but were frightened away by the barking of a dog.

Twins' Lives Alike in Politics and Work

Beloit, Wis.—The Hansen brothers were born twins, but they did not let it stop there. They have kept on being twins all their lives.

Both are bankers, Edward F. Hansen is president, and William O. Hansen is teller of the Beloit Savings bank. Both have been stalwart Republican watchdogs ever since they reached voting age. Both were members of the old Volunteer Fire department. "And that," explained Edward, "is something to brag about in Beloit."

Edward was a member of the last assembly. William was an assemblyman in 1927. Both have been aldermen. After Edward had served 11 years as a jury commissioner, William was appointed to succeed him and served eight years.

The Hansens were born October 7, 1901. As boys the two were inseparable chums. They had the same tastes in practically everything. They started out in different vocations. Their father was a blacksmith and only had work for one apprentice, so Edward became a machinist instead. William's training in his father's shop got him a job later as instructor in the College Manual Training school. The two could not, in the very nature of things, remain in different lines of work. Edward helped to form the Beloit Savings bank 40 years ago and has been with it ever since. William became a banker 23 years ago.

See Fish Clog Brook and Then Dip 'Em Out

Wolfboro, N. H.—Fishing with nets and pails in a brook blackened by thousands of fish, and on property through which the owner offers to trundle the fishermen in his "barrow" is the privilege enjoyed by a throng of sportsmen who come to this town evenings from many miles around to enjoy the real thrills of fresh water fishing.

And here's how:

The smelting season is on and for a few days each spring these small fish rush into the brooks around Lake Wentworth to spawn. After dark, like a well-drilled army, thousands of them blacken the brook in their flight into shallow water. Then the fun begins.

The brook is allowed to become filled with the little fish and then at a signal all rush in with their dip nets and in a short time fill their pails.

Cy Jenness, who owns the property nearest the Willey brook, which is one of the chief brooks visited by the little fish, recently had a notice in the local paper to the effect that he welcomed all comers but desired that they refrain from passing over his property with automobiles, even offering to wheel the visitors to the brook in his "barrow" if they couldn't get there any other way.

Market for Fruits And Vegetables

New York, July 23.—State Department of Agriculture and Markets: Upstate big Boston lettuce was abundant again today on the Syracuse wholesale district. Price changes were unimportant but the demand was moderate and confined principally to good quality offerings. Most of the jobbing sales in crates of 24 heads were made at 75 to 85 cents, while occasionally some business was transacted at 75 to 85 cents per crate as high as $1.00. Some inferior offerings worked out around 25 cents. Pascal coast iceberg lettuce sold at $1.25-1.60 per crate of 48 and 60 heads.

The short supply of state sour cherries with results in a steady firm market. The red and dark varieties in four-quart baskets packed out at 50 to 60 cents and 12-quart baskets at $2.00-2.75.

Offerings of Catskill mountain cauliflower were limited. Prices advanced sharply especially as buyers large. The demand was moderate. The very finest brought $3 per 2 pint crate. The poorest sold at $2 per crate. Washington cauliflower realized $2.25-3.75.

Little activity prevailed on the state New York green peas. Receipts were more liberal. The demand was slow and values averaged lower. Sales were made at $1.50-2.50 a bushel basket. Washington green peas in crates of approximately 40 pounds packed out at $4.00-5.00.

The season's first Hudson valley transparent apples arrived today. The fruit showed fine quality and United States grade No. 1. Bulk stock wholesaled at $2.50 a bushel basket.

Tucked-in supplies of Orange county celery were moderate. The tone was steady with the demand fairly good, especially on large well-blanched stock. Bunches of 12 stalks realized 25 cents to $1.25. Offerings in the rough packed in two-thirds crates changed hands at $4.00-4.50 on the best and at $2.50-3.50 on the ordinary to fair.

The price trend on Hudson valley gooseberries was again upward. The fanciest large offerings commanded 20 cents a quart.

Never Thought Any Medicine Would Help Him Like Nu-Erb Did

Poughkeepsie Man Declares That It Brought Prompt Relief After All Else Had Failed

MR. GEORGE ROBINS

"I had tried treatments and medicines of all kinds but there was nothing that helped me until I got the Nu-Erb and it seems as though this medicine is just made for my trouble and so much for it has completely ended all those disorders and pain and distress which were caused by my stomach, kidneys and liver. It has strengthened my nerves so that I sleep soundly all night long. The dizzy spells, gas and rheumatic pains are a thing of the past and my entire system has improved to such an extent that I am feeling stronger and better than I have for years. I never expected that any medicine would do for me what Nu-Erb has and I not only recommend it, but urge everybody with a sufferer from similar troubles to give Nu-Erb a trial."

Pan-Ams Win in Tenth from Hoods

The Pan-Ams came through in the tenth inning with a run which ended the game in their favor 10 to 9 when they played the Hood Tire team of Poughkeepsie, Sunday afternoon at the Pan-Am Park on the Saugerties road. The Hood's best time at bat came in the first. They batted Johnny Carpenter all over the lot, getting seven hits which yielded six runs. Cragan then went to the mound and pitched good ball but he became slightly wild in the fourth which resulted in two runs. The Pan-Ams tallied once in the second but in the fifth they had quite a harvest of runs. Six crossed the plate in this inning which put them in the lead.

After the Pan-Ams brought six runs across the plate in the third, the contest became a pitcher's duel between Cragan and Brenham. The Hood team scored twice in the fourth to go into the lead once more. However, the Pan-Ams were unable to do anything in their half of this inning. It seemed as though the local team was to be in front because the fifth saw them bat in two runs which made the score stand in their favor, 9 to 8. In the ninth the Hoods tied up the score.

Lay came in with the winning run in the tenth. Charlie got on base by clouting out a double and he went to third on Hoffman's sacrifice. Sickler did the trick when he banged a hot liner past short which allowed Lay to reach home safely.

Firemen to Have Batting Practice

The members of the paid fire department will have batting practice this evening and the work of selecting the team to represent the department in the game with the Utica fire deparment at the Fair Grounds on August 19 will be taken up. It is expected that the local team will be composed entirely of paid firemen with the exception of the battery who will be selected from the volunteer ranks. It is planned to have the pitching done by Joe Coughlin and Fred Stoudt, well known local twirlers as well as volunteer firemen, with Hinckley, another volunteer, at the receiving end.

Tickets for the big game are being sold by members of the fire department and are being easily disposed of as the proceeds from the game are for the benefit of the pension fund.

On August 24 the local firemen will play a return game at Utica with the firemen of that city.

Ray Miller Fights At Woodcliff

Ray Miller, a sensational Chicago lightweight, and Joey Abrams of New York will clash in the star bout of ten rounds at Woodcliff Pleasure Park Tuesday. Miller, with victories over Baby Face McLarnin, Joe Glick, Mike Dundee, Sid Terris and Babe Herman, as well as a number of other prominent ringmen, is coming to Poughkeepsie confident that he will give the rough and tough New Yorker a real boxing lesson.

Harry Sankey, Miller's sparring partner, will meet Pete Burns in the semi-final of eight rounds. Burns, recently defeated Paulie Porter of Kingston in one of the best bouts to be held in the Colonial City in months. Howard Bush of New York, boxes Joe Mack, former national amateur champion in a six rounder while another six will bring together Jack Sullivan and Paul Amorosa.

The opening bout, the third six on the card, will be between Al Ferrone, the mad hatter of Beacon, and Georgie Cerutti of New York. The first battle will go on at 8:15 p. m.

Ruby Victorious.

The Ruby Robins scored a 10-9 victory over the Wilbur team on the latter's diamond Sunday afternoon. The Robins did some good stick work, each player getting a hit during the game. Next Sunday the Ruby team will play Haines Falls at that place.

Koenigs Bow To Rondouts

The Rondout A. C. shoved seven runs across the plate at Hasbrouck Park Sunday afternoon, while their opponents, the Koenig All-Stars, collected but four tallies during the session on their home grounds. In the final inning the Rondouts made six runs off the hurling of Leo Caunitz, thus establishing their superiority. Leo was touched for 12 hits altogether, while Joe Coughlin allowed the Koenigs eight.

It is the intention of the Rondouts to abandon Block Park, their Seventh ward diamond, for the Kingston Fair Grounds, where they will meet the strongest opposition available every Sunday.

Tagging Major League Bases

(By Herbert W. Barker, Associated Press Sports Writer)

Donie Bush's Pittsburgh Pirates have cruised back into the National League lead, displacing the Chicago Cubs, whose latest tenure of office lasted just twenty-four hours.

It took two fine pitching performances to reinstate the Pirates at the top of the heap. Remy Kremer, the big Frenchman who has been making a gallant come-back this season, held the New York Giants to five hits as the Corsairs triumphed, 5 to 3, while over in Brooklyn the old Cub nemesis, Dazzy Vance gave the Bruins five scattered safeties and beat them 3 to 1. The net result was to drop the Cubs back into second place, a game behind Pittsburgh.

Kremer had to be at his best to hang up his 12th victory of the season. The Pirates got only eight hits but bunched five of them with Fred Leach's muff of a fly ball to score four runs in the fifth. In the home half of the same inning the Giants tallied twice on three hits. All the Pirate hits were made off Larry Benton, the other Giant twirlers, Fitzsimmons and Mays, setting the opposition down in order over the last four innings.

The triumph gave Pittsburgh an even break in the series and a record of 11 wins and four losses in the east.

Vance struck out ten men in giving the Robins their first victory of the season over the Cubs. Pat Malone weakened in the seventh and the Robins scored two runs and then added another in the eighth off Charlie Root. The only Cub run came across in the fourth when Rogers Hornsby hit a home run.

The St. Louis Cardinals lost both ends of a double bill with the Boston Braves, 4 to 2 and 4 to 3. Sisler's double with the bases filled in the ninth gave the Braves the second game.

Red Lucas pitched good ball after a shaky start and Cincinnati downed the Phillies, 8 to 5.

Over in the American League, the Philadelphia Athletics lengthened their lead over the New York Yankees to 10½ games, beating Detroit, 10 to 6, in 11 innings while Cleveland was downing Huggins's men, 6 to 4.

Kyle Graham, a rookie from the Pacific Coast League, gave the A's plenty of trouble but they got to him in the eleventh for four runs. The Tigers came back fighting but could score only one run in their half. Bing Miller was the big gun in the Athletic attack, getting five hits, two of them doubles, and driving in three runs.

Waite Hoyt had another off day at Cleveland and the Indians pounded him for 10 hits and all their runs in the first inning. Miller weakened in the latter innings and gave way to Wesley Ferrell, who was effective in the pinches.

The rampaging Chicago White Sox slugged three pitchers for 12 hits to shut out the Boston Red Sox, 10 to 0. Ted Lyons gave the Red Sox only four hits and none got as far as second base.

The St. Louis Browns bunched hits to down the Washington Senators, 8 to 5. Sam Gray, although touched for 12 hits, bore down in the pinches and succeeded in earning his 13th victory of the season.

Character Formation

There cannot be any goodness unless it is a practiced goodness. Genius forms itself in solitude, but a character in struggling with the world.—George Meredith.

Industrials Open Season Saturday

A team to be picked of Industrial League stars and known as the Kingston Industrials, will make its first appearance Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Athletic Field, when they meet the Bushwicks of Saugerties. "Waco" Peters, of the Artnells, will be on the mound for the Industrials, while Jim Volker will be held in reserve. Prelelgh, Bushwick's ace and fast-ball pitcher, probably will oppose Peters.

Was Willing to Sell Donovan for One Cent

For Sale—"Wild Bill" Donovan. Price—One Cent.

The late Bill Donovan, who helped the Detroit Tigers win pennants in the American league in 1907-08-09, was on the block for that trivial sum in his first year of minor league baseball.

In his first game with Waterbury, Donovan walked 10 men, hit a few and let loose several wild pitches. Roger Connor, former baseball star who was managing Waterbury, paced the floor several times after the game and came to the conclusion that one cent was Donovan's worth.

A rival manager placed a penny on the table and was willing to "take a chance" on Donovan. However, Connor's assistant manager begged his boss to hold off the deal several days. Connor agreed.

The deal never came off.

Two days later Donovan was the hero of a 14 inning game. With the score 0 to 0 up to the 14th inning, Donovan stepped up to the plate and drove a home run, winning his own game.

The varsity football team turned in three victories against two defeats, while the reserve eleven won three games and lost none. The cross-country squad also had a clean slate with three victories while the baseball team won seven of the Big Ten contests.

The Railroaders are still in the run for honors in the second half of the Industrial Baseball League, but cannot afford to lose another game and remain in the running as they have already dropped one game. The Hercules, winners of the first round, have lost two games in the second half and are out to get on the winning road. Johnny Carpenter and Herb Clark will make up the Railroaders' battery; Ken Best and Hazling will compose the Hercules'.

All-Stars Defeat Gardiner Nine

The Kingston All-Stars took the Gardiner nine into camp, to the tune of 14-3, Sunday afternoon at Gardiner, where Jimmy Volker, hurling ace of the Stars, won his fourth consecutive game. Leach, who left the Gardiner mound in the eighth inning with the score 7-3 in favor of the Kingston boys, was replaced by Mitchell, whom Manager McCardle's All-Stars found for seven more runs, making the score 14-3. Gardiner has booked the All-Stars for another game on August 4, when the local boys will face a much stronger team because it is Gardiner's intention to load up for the battle.

Outline of Success

Our definition of success is unorthodox. We claim that any man who is honest, fair, tolerant, kindly, charitable of others and well believed in a success, no matter what his station in life.—Jay E. House, in the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Warren's Boat Wins Two Prize

Charles A. Warren and "Mac" Hagenlocker participated in a motorboat regatta at Troy Sunday held under the auspices of the Troy Motorboat and Canoe Club and the city of Troy and carried off two of the first prizes.

The regatta was held at North Troy and thousands of motorboat racing enthusiasts lined the banks from the Waterford bridge to Hoosick street, North Troy, to witness the events.

In the "Mayor's Race" Mayor Cornelius F. Burns of Troy as the passenger on "Hacker Craft," the entry of Mr. Warren, beat out "Half Moon" the entry of Charles W. Schoick with Mayor John B. Thayer, 2nd of Albany as guest passenger by a matter of a few feet. This race was a thrilling one and was arranged as a special match race between the mayors.

In the first heat of the Class A race Marty Hagenlocker came in fourth driving "CAW" the outboard craft of Mr. Warren. In the second heat he crept up to second place and in the summaries tied for second place with "Peggy Herself," the entry of William Demosh of Albany.

In the runabout, experienced handicap, six mile race "Hacker Craft" of Mr. Warren came in first with "Half Moon" second. In the event the prize was a handsome cup and all four boats entered made every effort to win. The race was one of the thrilling ones of the day.

Horseshoe Club To Hold Contest

The members of Class C of the Kingston Horseshoe Pitching Club will meet at Forsyth Park Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock. There will be contests between the different members of this class and prizes will be awarded to the winners.

The members of the club meet at Forsyth Park Wednesday evening and under the coaching of Frank DuFlon, the president of the Kingston Horseshoe Club, get in a few hours' practice, in preparation for the coming contests at the Farm Bureau picnic and the match with the Poughkeepsie Horseshoe Pitching Club.

On Saturday afternoon the local club expect as their visitors the members of the Horseshoe Pitching Club from Poughkeepsie. There will be a match between the teams representing each club and also singles matches between the members of the two clubs. The Kingston Horseshoe Club invite the public to visit this match or any of their Wednesday evening matches at the park.

United States Takes High Rank in Health

At the beginning of the Nineteenth century, according to Doctor Osler, there were only three medical schools in the United States and only two general hospitals. Students who desired a better education than they could receive locally were forced to go abroad.

There were only a few medical journals in circulation in this country and almost no American medical books had been published. Around the middle of the century, many new medical schools were founded, but the standards were low and the education they gave was poor.

The reformation started in Harvard shortly after President Eliot assumed office in 1869 and quickly spread to the other medical schools of the country, stirring them all to new life and activity. We have now eighty medical schools, 4,322 general hospitals, and a medical literature so rich and voluminous as to be embarrassing.—Basil Mazzel in the Century Magazine.

Recent Employment of "English" for "British"

The extreme sensitiveness of the Scotch and Welsh about the use of the word "English" as a general adjective for the inhabitants of this island is well known, writes the London correspondent of the San Francisco Chronicle. Speakers in the house of commons are continually being heckled on the subject. They must say (at least so the members from north of the Clyde insist) "British," and not "English." This has led to many plaints that the word "English" or "Englishman" can hope for a good reception anywhere in the world except in Westminster.

So sensitive are the Scots generally at being left out in this way that there is a story that once, during the World war, some Scottish soldiers who broke into the Hindenburg line were indignant to find the notice "Gott Strafe England" posted in an abandoned dugout. They immediately crossed out the last word and substituted "Britain."

Early Paper Money

Marco Polo, returning to Venice late in the Thirteenth century from his travels in strange countries and on unknown seas, told among other wonders how the Great Cham in China caused paper money to be made from the bark of the mulberry tree, "some of the value of a silver penny, tournois; and others of the value of a Venetian silver groat; others of the value of two groats, others of five."

The Chinese had been making paper money since the Sixth century. At first a game was played with little paper bank notes themselves. Later, cards in the form of the paper money were made, using the same money symbols, a coin, a string of coins, myriad strings of coins, systems of myriads of strings of coins which are the basis of the units now.—Boston Transcript.

WILL HUNT AFRICAN GAME IN MOTOR CAR

Night Pictures of Wild Life Are Sought.

New York.—Mr. and Mrs. Prentiss Gray of Lawrence and Wilfred W. Brown, ornithologist of the Academy of Natural Sciences of Philadelphia, have left for Africa on an automobile equipped motion and photographic expedition sponsored by the academy to obtain night photographs of jungle wild life and specimens of rare African animals for the habitat collection of the museum. They will go directly to Mombasa, East Africa, where the seven months' campaign in the jungle will begin.

Throughout the several thousand miles of the journey Mrs. Gray will drive a large-quarter ton truck equipped with a special all steel body as a blind for taking night pictures. The truck is fully protected on all sides, and its driving compartment is fitted with nonshatterable glass.

The car is so arranged that Mr. Gray can stand in it and operate two still cameras and two moving picture cameras mounted on the roof and reached through a trap door. It is equipped with an extra axle for rough roads and with four rear wheels, two of them carrying tanks from the engine. Balloon tires of much greater thickness than usual will be used, with tubes covered by the tough skin of the eland, an African antelope.

Dog to Accompany Them.

Upon arrival at Mombasa the party will be met by Philip Percival, who has organized a group of fifty porters, gun carriers, and native huntsmen. Percival, one of the most famous white-gulches of Nairobi, who led the George Eastman and other large expeditions through the African wilds, has purchased all the food and living equipment for the Gray expedition, and with Rags, a favorite Airedale of the Grays, will accompany them throughout the trip.

Among the specimens in which the museum is particularly interested are a variety of rare deer from eastern Angola and Rhodesia. They include Selous' Situtunga, the Lechwi water buck, Lichtenstein's hartebeest, and the Nakong or Speke's bushbuck. The little known giant sable, an antelope noted for its huge antlers, is the prize most desired by the explorers.

The overland trip, in which Mrs. Gray will drive most of the way, will take them from Mombasa, up through Nairobi, then to southern Tanganyika, across Lake Tanganyika to Elizabethville and Elva, in the Belgian Congo, thence to Angola in Portuguese West Africa.

Will Retrace Steps.

Returning, the party plans to retrace its steps across the Belgian Congo to the head waters of the Nile and make its way down that river to Khartoum and Cairo, or will embark on a steamer at Lobette bay on the coast of Portuguese West Africa for London and New York.

During and after the World war Mr. Gray was assistant director of the commission for relief of Belgium and assistant director of marine transportation of the food administration under Herbert Hoover. Mrs. Gray was also active in war relief. She received the medal of Queen Elizabeth from King Albert of Belgium for her activities in relieving the suffering of Belgian women and children.

In 1917 Mr. Gray was the last American to leave Brussels. He remained for a month after Brand Whitlock, American minister, had left the city, to turn over affairs of Belgian relief to the Dutch and Spanish ministers. Mrs. Gray and her daughter, Barbara, remained with him.

Aerial Paymaster Aids Morale of U. S. Marines

Washington.—The aerial paymaster is the rule in Nicaragua where United States marines are scattered through virtually inaccessible territory.

The expeditionary forces recently have completed the payment of more than $1,500,000 to marines stationed in outlying districts. In many instances the pay roll for the local contingent is dropped from the plane.

This is the only way to make certain the marines will be paid promptly. While they do not need much money in outlying districts, the fact that it comes regularly helps materially in maintaining morale and military efficiency.

Teller Tricks Bandit With Mutilated Bills

London.—A lone gunman escaped with $1,100 in mutilated bills from the main branch of the Bank of Montreal at 10:45 a. m. the other day after presenting a note at a paying teller S. B. Dunn, demanding cash. Dunn pushed the packet of bills toward the robber. The teller's presence of mind in utilizing the mutilated bills saved the bank several thousands of dollars which he had in his cage.

A customer made a clutch at the fleeing bandit but failed to hold him.

BACTERIAL COUNT IMPORTANT TEST

Necessary That Milk Dealers Be Able to Judge Quality.

"It is just a question for the customer to understand the significance of bacterial counts in the production of sanitary milk as it is for them to understand the use and significance of the Wassermann test," says Robert S. Breed, of the Geneva experiment station.

Doctor Breed cites two uses of bacterial counts in New York state that affect the consumer sometimes intimately and directly. "One of these," he says, "is the use being made by public health control officials and less frequently by milk dealers to judge the sanitary quality of milk. When results of these laboratory examinations are unsatisfactory, they are used as a basis for bringing pressure directly or indirectly upon the dairyman to improve his equipment and methods of handling milk. The second use touches the dairyman's pocketbook directly inasmuch as premiums are being paid at many grade A milk plants for milk having bacterial counts of less than 25,000 or less than 10,000 per cubic centimeter. Failure to meet these standards causes the loss of premium money that really represents the greater part of the profit to the dairyman."

"Dairymen should familiarize themselves with laboratory methods whose use affect their business so intimately. Payments of premiums for high-class milk is sound providing the basis used in determining premiums is fair and equitable. No more satisfactory system of paying premiums has yet been devised than to pay them on the basis of bacterial counts."

Feeding Grain to Cows on Pasture Is Favored

A cow eating 75 to 100 pounds of average June grass per day is eating the equivalent of 15 to 20 pounds of mixed hay. Do we feed our good cows only hay in winter? No; then why do we expect our good cows to keep up in flesh and in milk flow all summer on grass alone? In winter we feed liberal amounts of grain and silage with hay. That is why cows on pasture should get something to eat in addition to grass. Good grass will help to increase the milk flow but it may take off some body flesh because there is no fattening tendency in lush grass.

A cow weighing 1,200 pounds on June 1, after being fed liberally on grain all winter was turned out to eat only average grass. On July 15 this same cow weighed 1,050 pounds. This loss in weight of 150 pounds was not due entirely to the heat and the flies. The loss was probably due to the lack of proper nourishment.

Grain feeding in summer is the secret of summer profits and continued production at the lowest cost.

Grain feeding the year around means the greatest annual profits. It helps to build up the cow in summer and fall and assures greater profits during the winter months.

Dairy Facts

Have the cow fat when she freshens.

* * *

Dairy cows producing heavily should be fed three times a day.

* * *

Rutabagas make excellent feed for cows. Twenty pounds can be fed daily to an animal.

* * *

Litter carriers and manure spreaders are of course great labor savers on the dairy farm.

* * *

Automatic drinking cups in the dairy barn pay for themselves quickly for the cows will produce more milk.

* * *

The man who is going into the dairy business today wants animals with authentic production records behind them.

* * *

To assure milk of pleasing flavor the dairyman should not give his cows until just after milking any feed likely to taint milk.

* * *

Cows giving milk which tests from 3 to 3.5 per cent fat should get one pound of grain for each four pounds of milk produced.

* * *

Good pasture, good legume hay, good ground grain will make a good cow do her best, provided you let her have plenty of good drinking water at all times.

* * *

It is necessary to rest out from the pasture all weeds likely to taint milk; until this is done, remove the cows from the pasture several hours before milking or keep them off the pasture.

* * *

The principal thing in feeding the bull seems to be to not feed large amounts of fattening grain, which will induce him to become overly fat nor to feed excessive amounts of silage which will cause him to become heavy in the middle and generally a slow breeder.

The winners in each contest will receive the Y. M. C. A. emblem. The "Y" emblem is five inches high and consists of the letters YMCA interwoven. The YM is white and the CA is of maroon color. This makes a fine emblem to be worn on the sweaters of the winners.

Camp Prenmaker, the "Y" camp for boys, will also give to the successful camper the Camp Emblem. The camper must prove that he has learned sufficient to warrant his receiving the camp emblem. The camp emblem consists of a triangle with blue, red or gold feather. The color of the feather depends on the number of years the fellow has attended camp. Extra bunks have been prepared in case there are any fellows who desire to enroll for the remaining period of camp which closes on August 2.

The SANDMAN STORY

FORGETFUL MAGGIE

"OH, DEAR, oh, dear, oh, dear," said Maggie, "whatever will I do. I've lost my stocking and I'm getting dressed to go to the party.

"It's one of my best stockings, too. Dear me, where can it be?

"Where could that stocking go?"

She looked and she looked and she looked.

She pulled out her bureau drawers, she pulled out things from her shelves.

Looked Everywhere and Kept Calling Out to Everyone.

She looked under chairs, under the bed, behind chairs, behind the bed.

She looked everywhere, and she kept calling out to everyone.

"Please look for my stocking. Can anyone find my stocking?"

Then she began calling out:

"I'll give a penny to anyone who finds my stocking."

Quite often Maggie did offer a reward like that, for she thought it made people look for her things a little harder, and she was apt to lose her things.

Not for long, of course, but she had put them somewhere else than remembered.

For instance, if she said to herself: "Now, I'll remember and put my piece of candy to eat after lunch on the mantelpiece instead of on the sideboard, for I'll be going into the living room right after dinner," then she would be sure to be looking for it on the sideboard and would be saying:

"But I'm sure it must be on the sideboard, for I thought it would be so much better to have it in the room where I was finishing my dinner."

So Maggie offered a penny reward for the stocking.

It was true they did hunt for her things more when she offered a reward.

It was hard on Maggie's allowance to have to offer so many rewards, but then she was always taking up everyone's time in looking for things!

But the stocking, all by itself, back of the washstand where Maggie hadn't looked, where it had fallen when Maggie had left them there when she had got up in the morning—so they'd be all ready for the party, was quite sad and felt quite absurd.

"She found the other stocking which was right on the washstand and she didn't look for me," the stocking objected.

"Or maybe she didn't even know that she had picked the other stocking up from the washstand.

"But how can she say that I'm lost? I didn't run away. I'm right here. I can't go anywhere without a leg to take me.

"I couldn't help falling. I haven't been anywhere, and I don't intend to go anywhere.

"Dear me, dear me, I wish I could be found."

And then, Maggie somehow remembered the stocking she had on had been on the washstand and she remembered about it.

She looked back of the washstand for the other stocking and there it was.

How glad she was. And she didn't have to give a reward, either.

She was indeed fortunate, and the stocking was so glad to go to the party and not to lie, limp and useless, back of the washstand.

It was so true, the stocking kept thinking, how little it could do unless it was worn.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

A "KNIGHT OF THE ROAD"

IT MAY exhilerate the tramp who rides surreptitiously in the baggage car and solicits pie at the kitchen doors to realize that in the name "Knight of the Road" with which we have humorously dubbed him, he is descended from the aristocracy of old.

In the same spirit in which we today call the vagrant a "Knight of the Road" the term was applied in the old stagecoach days to the bold highwayman who took toll from travelers whom he regarded as his legitimate prey. Because of occasional acts of kindness to his victims, or chivalrous action to women among them, these characters took hold on popular imagination and romantic stories were woven around them like the famous old English legends of the delightful outlaw, Robin Hood.

The original "Knight of the Road" however, takes us back still further to no sham gentry, but to the true and literal knighthood of Europe during and subsequent to the Crusades. Our modern phrase had its beginning with their "Knight Errant," "errant" meaning to wander, being derived from the old French errer, "to travel." He was the wandering knight who, after the objective of the Crusades had been removed, traveled through France and Spain in search of adventure, of a mission, of work for his lance.

Horse Central Feature of Gypsy Divorce Case

The sacrifice of a horse was the central feature of a Scottish gypsy divorce 100 years ago. The animal was taken into the room of the woman concerned, and if it proved docile that was taken as an indication that her behavior had not been very bad. If, on the other hand, the horse became violent she was considered to have been extremely vicious. Then the husband and wife would walk around the horse in contrary directions, and finally part, walking north and south, never again to meet. The husband afterward ate the horse's heart at a solemn feast, and from time to time visited the grave to see that it had not been disturbed, and to mourn over it. It was said that there were occasions when the woman as well as the horse was sacrificed.

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

ONIONS

THE superstition of "folk-medicine" all over the United States assigns medical virtues to onions which, therapeutically, they do not possess. The superstitions vary in different sections but all ascribe great power over disease to the onion.

In some parts of New England it is said that if you hang a row of onions over a door the house will be guarded against the entry of any disease which might be brought into it by a visitor. As the visitor crosses the threshold the onions over the door "draw" any infectious or contagious disease which he may have out of him into themselves. Therefore you must on no account eat onions which have been hung over a door.

The onion superstition comes down to us from the Egyptians by way of the Latins. The Italians sometimes carry an onion in their pockets as a protection against the evil eye which, according to an old Neapolitan writer, is very effective because "the devil respects the onion, the ancients having adored it equally with himself." By "the ancients" he evidently means the Egyptians with whom the onion was a sacred plant—a sort of vegetable god, powerful to protect if properly propitiated. The string of onions over the New England doorway would make a citizen of Thebes in the reign of Rameses feel quite at home.

What You Should Know About Yellows and Reds

Chartreuse is a yellowish green named after a liqueur made by Carthusian monks.

Citron has nothing to do with our citron, but means "lemon" in French. It is correctly the clear yellow of a fairly ripe lemon.

Maize is the color of ripe Indian corn.

Paille is straw color—paille meaning "straw" in French.

Saffron is the color of the stigmas of the crocus flower.

Orange is of course the color of the fruit. It is to red and yellow what purple is to red and blue. Typical yellow is just half way between pure red and pure blue in the spectrum.

Chinese red and lacquer red are the same. It is a clear, lovely red with an orange cast. Much Chinese and Japanese lacquer is of this color.

Scarlet is a bright red that inclines neither to the violets nor the oranges. It is the reddest of all reds.

Crimson is a bright red with a purplish cast.

Cardinal is a bright red midway between crimson and scarlet.

Carmine also inclines toward the purplish cast. It is not so bright as crimson.

Italian pink is named after color used in tinting walls in Italian halls and houses.

Venetian is a slightly orange red named after the color of Venetian sail cloth.

Parliament's "Red Line"

Along the edges of the carpet on each side of the British house of commons runs a red line. By an unwritten law no member may pass these lines when speaking. The custom dates from the days of the Cavaliers and Roundheads.

"High Grade But Not High Priced"

An Economical Extravagance

GOOD furniture is not an extravagance; it is an investment in comfort and good taste. It is an expression of a woman's natural pride in the appearance of her home. She instinctively knows that the attractively furnished home exerts a strong influence over all who live in it or visit it, and that the furnishing of her home is one of her greatest opportunities for expressing herself.

Women of good taste like to choose here because we specialize in good furniture, and they have learned from experience that our prices are as low as those of any store anywhere, for similar grades of furniture.
